Maine's River Valley

The area features four seasons of recreation, including skiing, snowboarding, snowmobile clubs, swimming, hiking, camping, kayaking, canoeing and ATV clubs. In addition to the benefits for our local residents, the activities attract a steady stream of tourists.

The River Valley has its own ski area. Black Mountain of Maine is a small non-profit area, with moderate alpine and world-class Nordic skiing trails. The area has a lodge which has been called one of the most beautiful anywhere. With two fireplaces, expansive views of the slopes, a large deck, exposed beam, the lodge feels rustic, but has all the modern conveniences, including full food service and a pub.

In the summer, there is increasing use of the Androscoggin River, ideal for non-motorized craft such as kayaks and canoes. Since the river is too shallow in places for motors, paddlers can have an undisturbed and tranquil float. An Androscoggin River Trail has been established, with several well-maintained boat launches. The River, once one of the most polluted in the country, has been restored to such a clean state that fishing and swimming are allowed.

For those who prefer motorized sports, the area is home to one of the largest networks of groomed snowmobile trails, perfect off-season for hiking or mountain biking. ATV clubs are establishing limited networks as well.

For hikers, the area has numerous choices. The Appalachian Trail passes within a few miles of the River Valley, and within the River Valley are numerous popular day hike trails. Most notable perhaps is Whitecap, now a preserve under the protection of the Mahoosuc Land Trust, where the blueberry picking is unexcelled in late July and early August. Another popular day hike is to the fire tower on Mt. Zircon. A local "Peak a Week" club organizes regular excursions to the top of local hills and mountains. Golfers will find Oakdale Country Club a popular course in Mexico.

We hope you enjoy your visit…and come back soon!

Town of Andover

Surrounded by the Western Maine mountains, Andover is a short scenic drive from Rumford, Bethel, Errol, NH and only 4 miles from Roxbury Pond. Andover is home to the Lovejoy Covered Bridge, one of five in the State. Motorists feel they've discovered Oxford County's best kept secret when they arrive in this quintessential New England village.

Andover is a popular recreational destination. With so many secret waterfalls, swimming and fishing holes, you don't have to be an Appalachian trail hiker to enjoy exploring area woodlands. An extensive trail system and Ellis River Rider's events has made Andover popular with horse riders nationwide. Road bikers find Andover to be perfectly located for great rides. The Snow Valley Sno-goers groom miles on ITS 82 network. Cross country skiers and snowshoers are invited to experience the expansive mountain views from Grimaldi Field located below the village. In the summer, Grimaldi Field offers a canoe boat launch.

The Town of Byron was organized on July 6, 1821 as Plantation #8. The ancient Indian name for Byron was Skillertown. In 1833 it was voted to become the Town of Byron, named after the poet of the century, Lord Byron.

In its early years, Byron was a town of farms scattered among the mountains of its perimeter. Beginning in the 1850's, the timber industry became important to the economy. Tracks were laid and the train would haul timber to the mills. In the early 1900's, growing hops (for making beer) also became important to the economy.

The Town of Canton is in the north east corner of Oxford County, in the foothills of Maine's mountain region, and covers 32.5 square miles. The 568-acre Lake Anasagunticook is shared with the town of Hartford and is the water supply for the town.

The Androscoggin River flows through the area, bisecting Canton from the Canton Point area. The interval land along the river has long been used for farming and much has been written about the Native Americans growing corn here.

Greater Rumford Community Center

GREATER RUMFORD COMMUNITY CENTER.

The Rumford Mechanics Institute was founded in 1911 by Hugh J. Chisholm, founder of the Oxford Paper Company. It was built to "provide a place for learning in the sciences, mechanics, arts, and whatever social and athletic activities would help the people of Rumford and the surrounding area." In 1972 the name was changed to the Greater Rumford Community Center. The GRCC, as a nonprofit organization, strives to provide affordable quality recreational programs and services for residents of the River Valley Area. The Center houses a gymnasium with walking track, a 24 hour fitness facility, racquetball court, numerous program rooms, a sauna, locker rooms and a game room. It is the home of an excellent gymnastics program offering instruction for toddlers through proven athletes involved in the successful year-round competition team. In addition to gymnastics, fall programs include; ju-jitsu, karate, aerobics, soccer and flag football. In the winter, when basketball bounces into full swing, parents, grandparents and friends fill the building with cheering and excitement.

Greater Rumford Community Center

Martial arts, fitness classes and basketball for an extensive list of indoor winter activities. In late spring the baseball and softball teams hit the fields to practice for hours of summer games. Youth and adult floor hockey is also offered. When the school year ends, more warm weather outdoor activities begin. The Black Mountain Pool is opened and supervised for refreshing swims and daily swim lessons. Summer soccer and swim lessons at Worthley Pond round out the exciting list of active things to do. If you are interested in joining the Greater Rumford Community Center, volunteering or making a tax deductible contribution please call 369-9906 or email grcc@gwi.net

The present town of Rumford was settled as New Pennacook in 1774 as a farming community and became incorporated as Rumford in 1800. Since that time it has become the business center of the region with the Catalyst Paper Company as its largest employer.

Rumford is a beautiful area filled with trees, streams and mountains. The Androscoggin River flows through the town and features a series of spectacular waterfalls. Together they have a total drop of 176 feet making it the highest drop east of the Niagara Falls.

The Reflection Pool at the foot of the Falls is a peaceful place for relaxation and solitude. As visitors gaze over the pool they are transported back to a time when the Anasagunticook Indians visited the area to hunt and fish. The business district of the town is located on "The Island" located between the Androscoggin River and the canals that were constructed many years ago to supply water to the mill. The Island features restaurants and retail stores along with the local government offices.

Rumford is home to Black Mountain of Maine ski area, where competitors from far away have competed in national and world championship events.

Paul Bunyan and his ox, Babe, have been a popular attraction and great photo opportunity for many visiting the Town of Rumford. These larger-than-life statues are located near the Information Center at the foot of the Falls. From there it is only a short walk over the bridge to "Shopper's Island," where you will find shops, restaurants and historic buildings.
